Eosinophilic Enteropathy is a complicated digestive system disorder in which the patient is unable to process foods normally resulting in various symptoms including vomiting, pain, swelling, reflux, difficulty swallowing, malabsorption, developmental delay and much more. Many children with this disease, including Jill's 8-year-old son, Derek, must be fed an amino acid-level formula through a feeding tube.

100% of all donations to CURED will go to research in hopes of finding a cure for this devastating disease.
